Lesson topic

This course will cover the main elements of “international investment law” and “investment treaty arbitration”. The outline of the course can be broadly divided into two elements. We will start with a historical overview outlining contemporary notions of international investment law. In doing so we will cover the development and origins of treaty systems. The perspective we will take for this first section will be from Japan, using local examples to explain what have become international standards. The second element of this course is focused on teaching all the contemporary aspects of international investment law and treaty arbitration. Here students gain the theoretical knowledge to put arbitration into practice. Furthermore, we will cover the most recent developments in Europe, Asia, and within the UNCITRAL Working Group III. Moreover, at the end of the course students will participate in a mock arbitration case will be done by the students in order to apply their theoretical knowledge into practice.

Lesson target

Upon completing the course, students will have an understanding of the following topics and be able to apply them in practice:

- Origins of International Investment Treaties (Based on Japanese historical examples)

Mock arbitration performance: 25%

Final Essay 30%

Evaluation baseline

- Students should be able to explain the main concepts and definitions of “international investment law” and “investment treaty arbitration” as well as recent developments in those areas.
- Two presentations are expected, where in the first the student applies the historical example of Japan to extrapolate their own countries entry into the international system. For Japanese students they can either select another country of their choice to do the same, or discuss an aspect not covered in the course. For the second presentation the student applies practical knowledge by discussing an investment treaty of their own country.
- For the mock arbitration, students are to defend the position of either the host state or investor in a practical example of an investment dispute.
- The Final Essay should be completed with appropriate research questions, hypotheses, logical arguments, evidence based on the discussion in the course. Proper references will be required.

Notice (include info. on related class)

Prior to taking this course, students are expected to have knowledge of public international law, international economic/trade law and as well as a general understanding of the international relations system. Knowledge of the economic/historical circumstances in East Asian during the early modern period would be a plus.

Review and preparation

Preparation: Read all the assigned materials (the Textbook chapters and the PowerPoint slides) and prepare the case-law before each lecture.

Review: Read the materials again and develop better understanding of the topics covered during the course.

Kobe University requires 45 hours of study from students to award one credit, including both in-class instructions as well as study outside classes. Students are required to prepare for each class and complete the review after each class, depending on the respective class goals.

Contact details will be announced during the course.

Message for student

Please make sure that you have the Textbook before the course starts.

The classes will be structured as follows: After we have completed the historical overview, students will be asked to prepare the first presentation. After we have completed the contemporary section students will again be asked to make a presentation. In both cases students will be assessed on their ability to apply the knowledge they have learned.
