授業のテーマと到達目標

Dispute resolution is an important issue in international business transactions. Litigation is a major dispute resolution mechanism. Lectures in Part A will first of all examine the legal framework for litigation in mainland China. Through several rounds of judicial reforms, China has introduced several important mechanisms to improve and complement the litigation mechanism. The lectures will introduce to the various dispute resolution mechanisms, covering the principles, processes, practice and relevant legal issues related to these mechanisms in China. The lectures will also examine similar mechanisms in Hong Kong and examine the underlying values, models and stages of dispute resolution mechanisms. By the end of the lectures, students will have gained an understanding of basic dispute resolution theory and skills, and their applications in mainland China and Hong Kong.
