This course will be at an introductory level for those wishing to develop their English language skills in relation to legal subjects. The language covered will include both academic language (used by those studying law) and professional language (used by lawyers).

Lesson target

By the end of the course, students will have improved their ability to:

1. listen to and understand both native and non-native speakers' of English talking about legal matters in situations such as meetings, discussions and lectures;
2. speak about legal matters in a variety of situations such as advising, negotiating, summarising, explaining complicated legal issues to both lawyers and non-lawyers;
3. read and understand legal texts such as contracts, statutes and case reports, law journal articles, law text books and legal correspondence;
4. write case notes and letters/emails of advice

Syllabus and plan

There will be a total of 15 lectures. The following gives an indication of the likely topics to be covered by the lectures but this may change depending on the speed at which the topics can be covered and by feedback from attending students:

Introduction: studying law and law subjects
Contract law
Tort law (civil wrongs)
Company law

Evaluation method

Students will be assessed as follows:

- 50%: by the level of their active participation and performance during lectures
- 30%: by written homework
- 20%: by an end of term test

Evaluation baseline

- 50%: by the level of their active participation and performance during lectures: this will include the level of attendance of classes and will be especially focused on speaking during class activities
- 30%: by written homework: there are likely to be 3 written assignments set during the term, each carrying 10%
- 20%: by an end of term test: the test will cover all the material covered during the term

Notice (include info. on related class)

This course is recommended for students who wish to progress to the Advanced Legal English course.

Review and preparation

Students will be required to do some reading in preparation for lectures and to do written and review work as homework after lectures.

Office hour・Contact information

Contact details will be announced during lectures.

Message for student

In order to talk about legal matters, it is not sufficient merely to know the correct legal terms and so the course will cover language for discussing, comparing, suggesting etc. This functional language will be useful for other business and social situations. Students should consider the lectures as an opportunity to practise expressing their opinions in new ways and not be afraid of making mistakes.

Improvements in Teaching

Text

Students will need to buy their own copy of the textbook but it will not be necessary to have the textbook for the first lecture.
